Parks and Recreation Management Certificate (PRMC)

Welcome from Parks and Recreation Ontario

Dear Participant:

On behalf of the Schulich ExecEd and Parks and Recreation Ontario (PRO), we would like to personally welcome you to the Parks and Recreation Management Certificate (PRMC) Program.

PRMC was developed through intensive collaboration between senior leaders in the parks and recreation sector and Schulich ExecEd instructors. The course content and learning outcomes are a product of this synergy, combining thought-provoking material from high calibre instructors with subject matter that meets the specific needs of professionals in the sector. The three modules; Communicating with Impact, Strategic Management, and Political Acuity and Organizational Savvy, are essential learning for those seeking to move into middle and senior management positions in municipalities. Attending this program gives you a leg up in advancing your career within the municipal parks, recreation, and community development sectors.

The Schulich School of Business is consistently ranked among the world's top schools for extended learning for management and leadership, operations and finance. Focused on a variety of learning modalities, their in-class instruction has garnered them accolades world-wide. Of the 11 major global rankings Schulich is ranked #1 in Canada in 10 of them and #2 in one other. Globally Schulich is always in the top 60 and in 8 rankings in the top 25.

Additionally, Schulich ExecEd ranks consistently among the top Executive Educator providers in the world, with the Financial Times of London 2019 placing it #2 in Canada and #41 in the world in terms of Open and Custom Executive Education.

Together, Parks and Recreation Ontario and the Schulich ExecEd have developed a learning experience that provides the right mix of academic rigour with real-world business experience. It is focused, practical, and immediately applicable to your work environment. Our accomplished instructors are innovators and thought leaders that are not only academics, but also experienced practitioners. They have been where you are and know the specific blend of skill and talent required to advance.

This program will help you gain a host of new skills, engage with your community and colleagues in a deeper way, and learn skills that will help you grow your career and help make your team successful. We wish you the very best in pursuing your professional development goals and thank you for choosing to participate in this program.

Regards,
Kim Gavine

Our Program

Parks & Recreation Management Certificate

This 3-day online management course is a custom Schulich ExecEd Certificate Program designed for municipal managers seeking to enhance their skills or advance their careers. It focuses on three core principles for successful leadership in public sector administration: Communication, Political Acuity and Strategic Planning.

Participants will leave the program with a greater understanding of how to:

- Be productive and effective leaders by applying newly acquired skills
- Communicate effectively with a wide range of municipal stakeholders, from customers to staff and elected officials
- Conduct service delivery and strategic planning at the program, department and agency level
- Navigate the political landscape locally and municipally to enhance actions and outcomes

3 days. 3 modules.

Delivered online.

Program At A Glance

This customized certificate program explores key concepts and theories in each of the core content areas, supported by research and practical case studies. There will be an assessment component at the start of the program, and short pre-work leading up to each session. In-class group work and assignments are built in to enhance participants' critical thinking and insights for practical application. The program will culminate with a graduation on the last day.

Program Architecture

Module 1

Communicating with Impact

Effective leadership requires a certain mindset and polished skills to engage diverse audiences at all levels. In this course, leaders will learn and apply proven concepts and methods for how to craft and present compelling messages that appeal to different styles of municipal decision-makers, peers, and staff. Participants will gain new insights about their style strengths and practice how to adapt their oral and written messages in ways that gain the awareness, interest, commitment, and action of others. Individual and team activities will challenge participants to demonstrate their learning in real-life scenarios and give and receive constructive feedback for improvement.

Module 2

Municipal Strategic Management

Strategic management is a planning process that enables an organization to set priorities and match its resources and capabilities to the needs of the environment to achieve a competitive edge, more efficiencies and better achieve the objectives of the organization. It helps align a city council or agency's goals and plans approaches to meet the needs of citizens, customers or members. Municipal, non-profit or private leaders are often the drivers of strategic management processes, which can be done at any level within an organization. Planning, requires solid research and information, conscious engagement of those who should contribute to and benefit from the plan, and measurement to assess performance.

Module 3

Political Acuity and Organizational Savvy

Political acuity is among the hardest concepts to teach or employ. Traditional thinking suggests one either has it, or doesn't. New research and the real-life experiences of the course leader combine to provide a candid and insightful conversation about what it means to be politically astute. Case-based discussions will be used to explore new approaches to thinking and analysis that will remove the mysteries of what it means to think "politically" and enhance the quality of analysis, advice and actions.
